TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

The Center for Women Policy Studies is pleased to support the efforts of the Good Deed Foundation in its collaboration with our colleagues at the Women's Funding Network (WFN). The two issues that this collaboration will address – alleviation of women's poverty and confronting the impact of climate change on communities worldwide – are issues that the Center is addressing with its global network of women elected officials. We therefore are delighted that this collaboration of the Good Deed Foundation and the Women's Funding Network will generate new funding to enable WFN to address these critical issues.

Harnessing the purchasing power of US consumers, who will soon be able to buy products bearing the Good Deed logo, is a brilliant strategy. I am certain it will be successful and will generate substantial revenue. We will include information about this effort in each issue of our quarterly NEWS from the Center for Women Policy Studies and will look forward to additional opportunities to share our enthusiasm for this program.

Sincerely,

Leslie R. Wolfe
President
